At any rate, Harvard is no worse off than she generally is.

The city of Barre never did have any great success with injunctions, anyway.

The labor men continue to choose their most prominent men for the high office. Gompers, Duncan and Mitchell are perhaps the best known names in the union movement of today.

With three persons dead and another barely saved, from the effects of drinking wood alcohol, there is reason for a thorough investigation up in the northern part of the state, and we understand that it is being held.

NOT "DULL AND UNINTERESTING."

In an arraignment of the game of foot ball a writer recently characterized the game as "dull and uninteresting." Upon that fact he depended to create a popular feeling against the game as it is now played. But, of all the faults of the game, dullness does not enter in, nor does it lack interest. Two games were played Saturday, each of which is a refutation of the assertion. At Springfield, Mass., two of the small college leaders met, and at Cambridge, Mass., two of the larger exponents of the game clashed. The attendance in either case was record-breaking. If there had been anticipation that the game would be dull or uninteresting, how would it have been possible to gather 43,000 people—one-eighth the entire population of Vermont—in the immense Harvard stadium? Would they have paid their one, two, five, ten or fifteen dollars for a seat just for the sake of witnessing a dull and uninteresting contest? And the attendance of over 10,000 to see Brown and Dartmouth clash would also have been out of the question if there had not been prospect of good sport. And then when these immense crowds assembled, the enthusiasm uncorked was a certain refutation of the dullness of the game. Not a play is made that does not call forth applause from one side or the other. Not a gain that does not bring out a yelp of delight or a groan of dis-

Report of Expert Accountants Who Have Examined the Equitable.

New York, Nov. 27.—Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., chartered accountants of Great Britain, and Messrs. Haskins and Sells, certified public accountants of New York state, have jointly made an examination of the affairs of the Equitable Life Assurance society of the United States, and certify to the following statement as of September 30, 1901:

"The assets of the society as claimed are all found to be on hand and in value amount to $416,166,500.19. The surplus over and above all liabilities amounts to $67,142,865.42.

The reduction in assets is brought about entirely by a conservative revaluation, most of which is in real estate and in shares owned by the society in certain financial institutions.

A PATRIOTIC SERMON.

By Rev. C. C. Conner Before a Large Audience.

A large congregation attended the Universalist church last evening, notwithstanding that there was some rain, and listened to the lecture of the pastor on "The Colonial Period of American History." The lecture was of a patriotic nature and the origin of our national Thanksgiving was set forth. The service closed with the singing of "America," each of the four stanzas being illustrated by an appropriate picture as it was sung. While the picture of the Puritans' first Sabbath in America was shown, the lecturer said:

"There is sometimes an irony of fate. Men are mocked by the past, which they must carry into the fellowship of the present. The Puritans who had persecuted the Pilgrims in the old home land found that their ruler, King James, bore down upon them with too stout a hand, then they slipped out from under it with a longing for liberty and set a sea with faces toward the inviting spaces of the new world, and they settled at Salem, neighboring to the Pilgrims at Plymouth.

"New England was made, not by the refuse or cast away citizens of the old world, but by the educated and select and high spirited and independent. The new nation lay not so much at the feet in the virgin dust of the earth as in the region of the heart and the head which gave impulse and direction to hands and feet.

"Puritan and Pilgrim were both religious, deeply so. They cherished convictions which made a bond between them and which moved them to build up one civil state together. Massachusetts, the Indian name for 'Blue Hills,' was founded by them on the coast. The hills were here before them, but the intelligence, the purpose, the government, the towns, the cities, the schools and churches, which lent meaning to the hills, they brought and builded. In many ways were their privations opportunities. The law of compensation came in, as it inserts itself everywhere. The absence of wide acres and navigable streams of water, which were the privilege and favor of the southern colony, and the threatening numbers of Indians, necessitated that the people live in villages and cities. The town became the unit of government in New England while the county was made the unit in Virginia. Manufacturing industries developed and thrived where the soil was not so friendly. Schools and churches were built largely and supported where the people were close together, and their intellectual and religious and social life waxed and flourished.

NEGRO LYNCHED.

Said to Have Confessed to Attempted Assault.

New Orleans, Nov. 27.—Monie Williams, a negro, was lynched at Tangipahoa, La., yesterday, for connection with the attempted assault upon Mrs. George, an aged white farmer's wife, a week ago. He is said to have confessed.

A deputy sheriff was taking him in a buggy to confront a witness when a crowd took him away, drove him to a negro church in the woods and made an example of him.

Heather Linens!

ANNUAL THANKSGIVING SALE.

In the old town of Dumfermline, Scotland, is the factory that makes the famous Heather Linens. Dumfermline was the ancient home of Scottish kings and Dumfermline Abbey is one of the historical sights of Scotland.

The world renowned Andrew Carnegie was born only a stone's throw from the Heather Linen factory, which has been famous for its fine Linens for many, many years. Pictures of the factory can be seen in our windows this week that will give you an idea of the enormous plant that we get the bulk of our Linen from.

This year we have been more fortunate than ever, for we secured through the Scotch syndicate a share of odd pieces, remnant lengths, etc., that makes our values more attractive than ever. If you take time enough to investigate we will show the most comprehensive line of Linens ever shown in this vicinity, with a long list of specially priced lots that will please you if you understand value. Be early.
